Hello from DMH

All you ever wanted to know about development of code of state regulations (CSRs) and more!!

The state’s rulemaking process is managed by the Administrative Rules Division in the Secretary of State’s Office (SOS). Rules can only be written if a statute authorizes a state agency to write a rule pertaining to a particular subject.

The Joint Committee on Administrative Rules (JCAR) monitors all agency rulemakings to ensure they do not exceed their statutory authority.

Following a lengthy internal review of the CPR rules, including numerous postings on the DMH website for input from service providers and other stakeholders, the rules were formatted as required by the Administrative Rules Division.

The proposed rules were then reviewed and approved by staff in the DMH General Counsel’s Office and the Governor’s Office.

Next steps, over the span of several months, will include:

• Filing the proposed CPR rule amendments with SOS and JCAR;

*Publication of the proposed amendments in the Missouri Register;

• 30-day public comment period begins when the proposed amendments are published in the Missouri Register;

• DMH has 90 days to act upon the rule (including response to comments) after the public comment period ends;

• Proposed final order of rulemaking is filed with JCAR where it is retained for a 30-day review period;

• Following JCAR’s 30-day review period, DMH files the final orders of rulemaking with SOS for a second publication in the Missouri Register;

At the end of each month, rules that are published as final orders of rulemaking in the Missouri Register are prepared in final form by SOS for publication in the update to the Code of State Regulations (CSRs); and Rules become effective 30 days after the publication date of the update to the CSRs.

Once a rule becomes effective, it has the force and effect of law.

Tips for attending conference calls or live webinars

Electronic and phone meeting options are a wonderful, convenient way to teach, train, be taught, network and meet with others. It does take some planning ahead to make the most of your electronic meetings. Here are some professional courtesies and tips to consider when attending a webinar or phone conference:

* Ensure you know how to connect ahead of time, including phone numbers, passcodes, links or other numbers.
* Ensure the equipment you are using (phone or computer) is able to run the webinar.
* Find out if the access is toll free.
* Avoid calling from a cell phone if possible, especially if the call could “drop”.
* Avoid participating when you are working with clients at that time.
* Avoid participating/calling in from the field where there is traffic noise, talking in the background and lack of privacy.
* Put your phone/computer on mute until you wish to comment. Remember to unmute when you do participate.
* Do not press hold while connected, as others will hear your agency/personal wait music.
* Don’t be a “stalker”. If the meeting leader permits, when you have questions, comments, ideas or thoughts, share them. It is likely others have the same thoughts or questions and it makes for a more productive discussion when people participate.
* When you do speak, share who you are first and then speak up clearly.
* Ensure that you have been listening to the discussion so that you don’t ask a question that has already been answered.
* Put away other work so you can give full attention to the presentation or discussion.
* If you must leave the conference, let the leader know you need to exit, if possible.

ACT Tips & Tools of the Trade

How well do your ACT clients partner with your co-occurring specialist on the team? Do they shy away from meeting with them because they are in early stages of change? Do they worry that the specialist will pressure them toward abstinence? If your clients seem to avoid meeting with your specialist, there are things your team can do to help:

1) Consider changing the title of your specialist to omit anything like “substance abuse,” “substance use,” or “addictions.” Instead, consider their title as clinician, counselor or just co-occurring specialist.

2) Adopt a motivational approach from the beginning, even in client screenings, that assures your clients the staff will not pressure them in any way toward goals they’re not ready for. Describe the person-centered, motivational approach and how that will play out on the team.

3) Specialists should ensure they are using a very motivational, client centered approach to addressing any addiction issues. Consider being trained on E-IMR or obtaining the E-IMR materials to study how to approach clients with co-occurring issues.

4) Start some groups for individuals in early stages of change. Let them be very non-threatening and use curriculums designed for those in early stages of change. Consider having a nurse or peer specialist co-lead the groups.

5) Ensure the entire team speaks to clients about the co-occurring specialist as a solid member of the team who is included 100% in all clients’ treatment, not just those with co-occurring issues.
Team Member Spotlight

Name: Megan Bearden

Team/Location: ACT TAY Burrell in Springfield

Position/Role: Team lead/therapist

Favorite thing about working on ACT team: Transdisciplinary team model (my team is awesome which makes my job easier!)

Favorite Food: Fajitas or spaghetti with homemade sauce

Something to share with other ACT teams: I have found it to be helpful to be strengths based with my team as well as our clients. As I draw on my team member’s strengths to complete projects, follow up on client needs, or meet basic job expectations, I find they respond better and more effectively. Overall it increases moral and outcomes to play to people’s strengths.

Client Weekly Schedules

How does your team use schedules for the clients? For a perfect fidelity score on function #3 of Daily Team Meeting Quality, the team should use schedules and they serve as a bridge between the interventions in the treatment plan and what is created for the daily staff schedule. Schedules are formatted to be shared with clients, have sufficient detail capturing the nature of the intervention, who is delivering it, and when it is delivered and drive the daily staff visits. The content and schedule appear to approximate the interventions listed in the person-centered treatment plan. Clients typically get a copy of their schedules and these are kept up to date for the client. They may reflect both ACT and other provider appointments or groups. If your team uses the schedules as listed above, then you may score full credit on this scale item!

SPARCS Training

Compass Health ACT team leaders Lauren Bruce, Wayne Johnson and Devin Hoover attended SPARCS (Structured Psychotherapy for Adolescents Responding to Chronic Stress) training on March 4th and 5th with another 2 days upcoming on May 21st and 22nd. This therapy is trauma focused and utilizes some DBT, CBT and TARGET skills within the modules. It is a group therapy provided to youth 12-21 over a 16 week period who have experienced multiple traumas and are experiencing continued trauma.

The modules help to teach affect regulation, attention management, self-perception, healthy relationships, somatization, awareness, mindfulness and distress tolerance skills.

TMACT Revision 3

Hard to keep up with exactly what has changed? We understand. We created this Q&A to explain changes made since TMACT 1.0 Revision 1. We also recorded a webinar for you! Part I is nearly 2 hours long and takes you up until about EP6. Part II is about 45 minutes, finishes up with the review AND gives you a sneak peak into eTMACT. PowerPoint Handout here.
