MoHousing

Missouri Inclusive Housing Development Corporation (MoHousing) is a non-profit organization whose primary goal is to provide support to individuals with disabilities as they search for a home that meets specific needs. MoHousing can assist individuals and families who are seeking affordable, universally-designed housing. MoHousing can also provide information to individuals, families, and support coordinators as they navigate the process to obtain needed home modifications through various funding sources. Information regarding renting or buying a home, the principles of universal design, links to housing resources, and additional housing-related information can be found on the MoHousing website at www.mohousing.com.
