Question	Response
Can PCSC ever be utilized in residential habilitation settings, or is it always in a natural home setting?	PCSC is available in any service environment, including residential habilitation settings.
Once new strategies are put in place, how quickly should the team expect positive results?	If everyone is implementing (using) the strategies correctly and consistently, results could be evident fairly quickly, within two weeks or so. If the strategies are more complicated, it may take a little more time. If people are not consistently using them you may not have an effect.
You have suggested that person centered planning and person centered practices are not what a behavior analyst does. I was trained in behavior analysis in the late 1960's and early 70's as applied behavior analysis was just getting traction. We were taught that context is critical within applied behavior analysis. PCP is a way for BA's to understand and modify the context called life. Why would that be "not" behavior analysis? Crappy Life == Crappy Behavior	We agree completely. ABA absolutely should be applied with person centered and positive strategies that immediately improve the quality of life for the individual. We have a special service that is not ABA services that we are discussing in this webinar.
So if I were practicing in MO as a BA, I would not be able to bill for person centered planning as a BA; I would need to bill it as person centered consultation?	You would bill for the service that was prior authorized and necessary. If you have ABA services on your contract and are a qualified provider and approach services in a person centered manner, but the service you are approved for is ABA you would bill for that.
