There are only 8 states* in the US that consider marijuana fully illegal.¹ In November 2018, voters in Missouri approved Amendment 2. This allows medical marijuana use in the state. Missouri launched the sale of marijuana to its patients in October 2020.

Possible negative effects of Marijuana Use

Impaired driving under the influence

Increased school dropout and low education achievement

Harmful to lungs and cardiovascular system

Increased accidents and injuries at workplace

Impaired teen brain development. Difficulty thinking, learning, problem solving, and maintaining attention. Anxiety, fear, distrust, and panic.

Irrespective of age, gender, and socioeconomic status, a person can get addicted to marijuana

The past thirty-day marijuana use in Missouri has decreased among adults older than 18 years. But it has been constantly increasing among youth aged 12-17 years (Figure 1).⁵

Marijuana is a commonly used illicit drug among adults and youth. It has adverse consequences on health and social life. States with medical marijuana laws have seen unlawful activities around the dispensaries and increased driving under influence offenses, etc.⁴ Marijuana distributors have been found operating in school zones and increased sales to minors is observed.⁴ Therefore, it is important to spread awareness about the health impacts of the drug use and misuse. It is also important to closely monitor lawful access of the drug to youth.
